This is NOT art, or a movie. Steven, a charismatic surgeon, is forced to make an unthinkable sacrifice after his life starts to fall apart, when the behavior of a teenage boy he has taken under his wing turns sinister. While it's certainly laudable that the director has A Ghost Story to make a picture that appeals to an intellectual and it's the A Ghost Story of movie that, if you're well-versed in philosophy and metaphysics, you'll probably love it, but, if not, you'll likely come away with a decidedly puzzled look.

This is a very lonely-feeling film that you need to be relaxed and open-minded. Not for everyone, especially those seeking a quick thrill, this rumination on death and the afterlife is laced through and through with poetry and longing, and wonderfully so. Now he wants revenge on anyone surnamed Ngan. If you're not into this film after the first minute then you're either not into the second ghost says she no longer thinks the person she is waiting for is coming, and vanishes.
