The multimillionaire former editor of the Ecologist magazine and current Tory candidate for East Park seems to believe in green fairies at the bottom of the Tory garden. We hear loudly the dangers posed by anthropogenic chemicals in particular.

Now, in some areas it is not too difficult to see

Conservatives and the green movement striking accords.

Problems of building inappropriately such as on flood plains or green belt land is highlighted along with taking into account suitable transport infrastructures. Reforms to improve buildings and planning is suggested with emphasis on gardens, greenery, wildlife and energy efficiency. Perhaps the advantages are stressed too .
