And so they travel into the depths of the forest with that mission in mind, terrified and hopeful about what they may encounter. They discover so many things at the top of the forest The most puzzling being all the animals, birds and insects vanishing, leaving the older generation with vague memories of the creatures and the younger generation with myths and legends.

A little boy, Nimi, is the childrens scapegoat and he makes a fool out of himself Fairy tales appear deceptively simple, when, in fact, the reverse is true. Meanwhile, their children learn that if they dare venture into the surrounding forest they will be taken by Nehi, the Mountain Demon. Will they be overwhelmed by the darkness?
